

Fortex is a “stack of wheels”. Each disc or revolving “wheel of symbols” is of a different size. The leftmost symbols of all the wheels is added mod  $b$  with the plaintext symbol to get the ciphertext symbol. Then the wheels are all advanced a certain number of positions or notches, depending on the value of the cipher symbol (and therefore on the plaintext.)